(*) In recycling a bicycle, we keep track of how much labor and new parts are needed to make a donated bicycle functional and safe to ride. The value of the donated bicycle itself is reported on 1b, while the rest of the sale is reported here. Donated used parts have no significant fair market value in general, but in our operation customer demand and ability to pay determines the value. Since some staff and volunteer labor is involved in organizing and inspecting parts, we assume that 85% of used parts sales represent the donated value, reported on line 1b; the rest is reported on 10a.
